1. Introduction

Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) basically means being a good corporate citizen.

The term CSR describes business behaviours that not only deliver commercial objectives and meet legal requirements but also have a positive social impact. It is a desire to run a business responsibly and align business strategy with CSR goals so as to have a significant and positive impact both on the business itself and the communities in which the business operates.

It may seem unnecessary to formalise what is or should be existing responsible business practice into a specific policy, but it can have significant advantages. Having a formal policy helps a business focus on what is important to that business and how it wants itself viewed externally. It can also help assess a business's fundamental ethos.

CSR also offers the wider community tangible evidence of a business's social commitment and can enhance its credibility. CSR will however mean significantly different things to different businesses. Environmental issues, for example, will be of significantly more importance to a waste management business than to a personal services company, which may place greater focus on community involvement. As such the waste management business should have a more involved and targeted environmental policy directed at its specific environmental impact.

CSR should however have real and achievable targets which can be actively measured.

Global Procurement Group Limited and any of its subsidiaries from time to time ("the Company"), the prosperity of its business and of the communities within which it operates, require a commitment to the sustainable management of its activities. The Company have therefore developed a policy that affects and enhances all areas of the business.

To demonstrate the Company's commitment and drive its CSR strategy forward, the Company have recently appointed a Head of CSR in January 2022.

The Company wishes to adopt and commit to the principles and practices set out elsewhere in this policy.

For the purposes of this policy, "Employees" refers to all employees, officers, consultants, contractors, casual workers and agency workers of the Company and any subsidiary from time to time.

For those Employees who are based outside of the UK, should there be any conflict between this policy and a local law, or any location-specific Corporate Social Responsibility Policy put in place by the Company (or any subsidiary) from time to time, the local law or location specific policy shall take precedence over this Policy.

2. Operating Policies and Procedures

The Company have a suite of operating policies and procedures which are reviewed regularly. A copy of all company policies can be found on the Company's shared drive and are available to request from the HR Team.
